

TAURUS

Underneath their cool, calm and collected exterior, Taureans differ greatly from all the other signs of the zodiac. Taureans manage to discreetly stay apart from the crowd, even though they have a well-earned reputation for being socialisers. They will let others get close, but only so close as they want them. Some claim that trying to get your point across to a Taurean, should they not want to hear you, is rather similar to talking to the trees they simply won't budge. And, there is no such thing as an open-book Taurean. Their feelings, fears and desires often run far deeper than anyone around them would guess. Like the butterfly that chooses to remain hidden in its cocoon until it is ready and prepared to emerge, so the true Taurean spirit remains hidden behind a veneer of day-to-day activities. That's why Taureans are sometimes regarded as snobby, withdrawn, boring, or even sulky.

The truth is, when Taureans manage to operate very adequately on their own form of automatic pilot, they can switch off from the world around them very efficiently. And when they do switch off, they are actually gathering in their inner reserves to deal with the outside pressures. This sign is also very closely connected to 'feeling good'. Most Taureans like their creature comforts and hate change because it takes them out of their automatic pilot condition of separating themselves from the world around them.

Taurus and Cancer, Earth and overwhelming Water? Yes, you've found the right partner. You both want the same things: a family, a home, stability, safety... You are both sensual, and Cancer's almost telepathic powers will guess your wishes before they are uttered. Your Cancer will take care of you, will offer you a harmonious home... how could such a relationship not work?

Money means very much to both Taurus and Cancer natives, so you can afford to spend and you can count on Cancer's being aware of the fact that (s)he has to work for his/her family, as much as you are aware of it. Cancer is a little thrifty, even thriftier than you are, dear Taurus, so you'll be the one spending more.

As for savings, Cancer buys the most up-dated machinery and keeps improving it, or the most expensive coat which (s)he'll wear for 15 years. Taurus makes investments and only afterwards spends what's left. You both know what perseverance is, you are both economical and patient. Moreover, if Cancer wants something badly, (s)he prefers waiting for the sales or looking in a different store to find it cheaper, which matches your lifestyle very well. Taurus sometimes likes going wild and buying the most elegant/sophisticated things, from famous shops. After all, beauty is so important to a Taurus!

A Cancer in need of money tightens the purse-strings. A Taurus in need of money finds another job. Anyway, even if your styles are different, the important thing is that you both have the same ideals. Unlike a Leo or a Capricorn, for example, who make money to get respect, a better social position or the others' admiration, you and your Cancer need it to make your life more beautiful.

Sexually, due to your unique, shape-oriented style and to the Cancer's high sentimentalism, everything will be like a heavenly music: nothing hasty, nothing too fast or spoiling the harmony of details. Your Cancer will leave you love notes where you expect the least (because Cancer is very romantic, governed by the Moon), (s)he'll light candles in the bedroom and make love declarations in a loud voice. Could you ask for more from each other?

Your protective tendency will be very useful in this relationship: Cancer needs many love proofs, (s)he's often capricious, and most often you don't even know where his/her moods come from. If you haven't found the most capricious Cancer in the world, the little earthquakes that his/her occasional moods will provoke (out of the blue apparently; if you don't pay attention to details, you can't even understand why (s)he got upset) will be easily solved considering your adviser qualities.

Therefore, a Taurus-Cancer relationship is meant to work. Most of the time you don't even have to make any effort.

Taurus and Virgo. Earth and Earth: an excellent combination. If you have found a Virgo, don't ever let him/her go!

Taurus and Virgo are both Earth signs, consequently you both want the same things: much money and free time for cultural activities. The Virgins are the highly cautious ones (What if...?), and Taurus is the "soul curer" of the zodiac, so you are a perfect match.

Virgo has so many fears and worries because (s)he has a keen sense of responsibility, of duty. Virgo is afraid (s)he'll disappoint the people around him/her, friends, bosses, neighbors... You, dear Taurus, are as perseverant as Virgo is, but you don't worry that much and, besides that, you like giving advice and comforting people, so you've found your pair in a Virgo...

Taurus' purpose in life is peace and harmony. And Virgo will offer you both. But, of all his/her qualities, Virgo's faithfulness and devotion will be the most attractive to you: (s)he's an upright person, a man/woman of the right sort of timber.

Virgo's sharp mind will fascinate you (for (s)he's governed by Mercury that is good at communicating). Virgo is also well organized and that will help you two set some habits that you like so much.

Fortunately, Virgo is a mutable sign, that is more flexible, which is once again excellent, because Taurus would do anything except changing...

Patience is characteristic of both Taurus and Virgo, pragmatism too, so what do you think will happen when lights are off? Virgo will agree on fulfilling your fantasies if you are patient enough with this native who releases from daily worries harder than you do and if you convince him/her not to think about his/her next task at work, but focus on what (s)he is doing at that moment.

Virgo has the gift (or non-gift) of being a little reserved at the beginning. Use your famous patience, dear Taurus, and everything will turn out very well. The only risk is that things might become predictable at one point... But Virgo communicates so well, has so many ideas and reads so much that (s)he'll surely come up with new ideas from time to time!

Briefly, if you were looking for your great love, you have found it!

Taurus and Capricorn, Earth again and again. Can a goat live under the same roof with a bull? Of course it can! The Taurus-Capricorn relationship is a highly promising one.

Taurus and Capricorn are both Earth signs, which means that you think alike and understand each other, even “feel” each other intuitively.

First of all, Capricorn inspires you, because he is not the man/woman to stay down the valley - the goat has to climb up the hills and the rocks to be at ease: (s)he is ambitious and persevering. It is at the top of the mountain that the Capricorn feels good and (s)he has enough patience and tenacity to reach his/her goals. Capricorn is very hardworking. When (s)he gets down to work, (s)he commits himself to it and gives his best.

Just like you, Capricorn knows how to deal with money and especially what to do with it, so you won't be in danger regarding the domestic resources. Your life together will be harmonious because you both know from your own experience what the other wants or needs.

Although Capricorn often has a very high sense of humor, (s)he is governed by Saturn, the planet of seriousness and of lessons taught by life, and that makes him/her more responsible, more careful, even more pessimistic: (s)he always expects the worse. You will often see a Capricorn in love expecting disappointments: this is Saturn's influence.

So be prepared to give your Capricorn all the necessary guarantees, all the proofs of your love (which (s)he doesn't ask for, but expects...) and be as faithful as you can. Of course, this characteristic shouldn't be a problem to you since Taurus is generally faithful and devoted and doesn't have to make any special efforts for that.

tracted to art, especially to music. Meaning? Meaning that you'll be able to communicate very well, intellectually and spiritually. Long, philosophical discussions and other such things will be a perfect binder for you.

Sexually, few people can resist in front of a Taurus' sensuality and touching, whether (s)he is a man or a woman (touching is very important to you since conceptually, Taurus represents shapes and organization), so... be yourself. Capricorn is more reserved in the beginning and (s)he needs time to relax, therefore a little effort and your proverbial patience might pay off here. You'll have to relieve your Capricorn of the burden of daily thoughts, because Saturn always surrounds this native with an aura of responsibility.

Due to the fact that both Taurus and Capricorn are long-term relationship oriented, I doubt you'll have any major disappointment together. The union between a Taurus and a Capricorn is amazing. You'll soon realize you have found your life partner.

Taurus and Pisces, sensual Earth and dreaming lakes...

For a Taurus, Pisces is indeed a perfect match, with his/her weird poetry, with the sensitivity, understanding and spirit of sacrifice that characterize this native governed by Neptune, the dream and mysticism giver.

Pisces will teach you the subtlety of living life at an artistic level, the altruism, and you could take him/her out sometimes, help your Pisces trust him/herself and especially give him/her a material base (Pisces are not into money and don't care about these earthly matters), teach him/her how to administer money and not to allow the others to take advantage of him/her.

You'll feel good together and your Pisces will understand and appreciate you very much, because (s)he admires and respects firmness and perseverance, shores and lands that (s)he can rely on. But you'll soon realize that your Pisces has no sense of reality! That's ok, you'll say, you have enough common sense for both of you. Moreover, the Pisces native likes being dominated, so from this point of view (s)he's the perfect for you, dear Taurus.

Pisces doesn't have a very prominent ego (some still wonder if this sunsign has or doesn't have a personality of its own!), for Pisces is the Water that takes the shape of any pot, therefore (s)he'll adapt very quickly to your lifestyle. Besides, a cold shower of realism doesn't hurt every now and then and (s)he's capable of appreciating good advice. Pisces won't rely on you too much though: most often (s)he has his/her own plans and projects.

Water and Earth mix very well when it comes to physical relationships. To the Pisces native, sex is an almost mystical experience, which - combined with your gift of making love, inherited from beautiful Venus, the mistress of your sun sign - can only take you to perfection. This is a lasting love.

Tenderness and affection? Your Pisces has a lot to offer. Imaginative as (s)he is, making love to him/her can always be an interesting experience, especially to a Taurus that can hardly ignore the patterns (s)he likes so much. You are good at shapes and reality, at sensible things. Pisces is often exotic and sometimes even weird so you'll be troubled by questions like: "Do I really have to eat all this at candle light? I can't even see what I'm eating!"

If you can follow your Pisces' path, you'll discover an ethereal and fascinating world. But don't let your Fish go off the rails too much - (s)he has this tendency in everything (s)he does. On the other hand, if you approach him/her with practical issues, trying to bring him/her down to earth... (s)he'll lose enthusiasm completely, so you'd better take it easy with prosaism around your Pisces, otherwise you'll lose him/her and when the Pisces leaves, (s)he usually leaves for good.

Therefore, is a Taurus-Pisces relationship meant to be? Yes, definitely, if you are willing to be loved in a way you don't understand, to accept Pisces' caprices and enter a world with no solid base, but much, much imagination and present living.

Taurus and Taurus. Here's a solid relationship! You are both so possessive and devotion is so important to both of you that the relationship could last for a very long time.

You like being able to trust a partner - and you can certainly trust a Taurus like you! Taurus likes taking the time to show his/her feelings and since you are both so sensual, so fond of touching (your sense of shapes is very keen), you'll surely have dream moments together.

Taurus is governed by Venus, so you both like elegant, qualitative things and the pleasures of life are not to be neglected by either of you, whether it is about eating or making love. Those governed by the planet of beauty need beauty almost instinctively.

You'll get along perfectly from this point of view: you both like comfort, you're practical, polite, tolerant, and you make a pair to which stability is more important than anything.

This is precisely what could lead to a small problem: too much stability, too much stillness, lack of more or less crazy initiatives... Taurus doesn't like changes but sometimes they are necessary and benefic. The first step is more difficult.

You could do with a little more passion and sense of adventure, and both of you lack the latter completely. And if it happens that you two fight from time to time, it's a problem because neither of you gives up, you are both stubborn and hard to set in motion.

Taurus people like having time to shed light on their emotions or to make decisions, but sometimes this is simply not possible. Fortunately, though, this won't be a problem for two Taurus people because each of you understands the other intuitively.

Sexually, with your gift for shapes and born sensuality, everything will be perfect, love will flow gently between you two, with no obstacles or overflows. But after a while, one of you will have to take the initiative and bring some more imagination, otherwise things will get boring.

Taurus and Scorpio, here's a combination that can be successful!

Both Taurus and Scorpio have a strong will, determination and enthusiasm. Neither of you is indifferent to what's going on around him/her. When you met your Scorpio, you were probably fascinated. You noticed qualities that you'd like to have. Scorpio is so charming that I completely understand you!

There are some superb similarities between you two, but also some differences that make you almost opposite to each other. This Water native is mysterious, emotive, sentimental, but at the same time introvert: it'll be hard to get into Scorpio's soul. To him/her, revealing him/herself to someone is like committing him/herself. And before doing that, Scorpio has to be certain it is worth it.

Even if you have known your Scorpio for years, you'll still discover that there are parts of his/her soul that remain impossible to understand. Scorpio governs things hidden under still waters and can go into undreamt depths when it comes to feelings. Under his/her apparent calm and reserve, there is an ocean of feelings that long to be discovered, understood and appreciated: and this is, indeed, your specialty, dear Taurus!

Scorpio is to a great extent the sign of obsessions: to him/her, love is love until death, but so is hatred! Nothing in the middle. Scorpio is jealous, but that doesn't bother a Taurus because jealousy and possessiveness are part of love to you, too. Sometimes Scorpio can't control his/her feelings, that's why (s)he doesn't open up that easily.

All this is meant to warn you that with a Scorpio, communication needs some stimulation because sometimes it may stagnate, other times block without an apparent reason.

Sexually, Taurus, the expert of shapes (therefore of touching), will fulfill a Scorpio's dreams although his/her feelings are sometimes so strong that even you will feel overwhelmed (the ocean we were talking about...). To a Scorpio, physical love is both a spiritual and a physical experience, and any real Taurus (that is with his/her feet firmly set on the ground) won't understand this right from the beginning. Maybe you'll have to go deeper in your soul and find more resources of romanticism and sensitiveness. Scorpio is the sign of physical love, so expect a night of passion like you've never lived before, because (s)he's truly volcanic, even as a Water sign!

In conclusion, a Taurus-Scorpio relationship is not easy. Communication, feelings... many things that separate you. But there are so many things bringing you together, that it is worth trying - if you manage to be as sensitive as you can (and then some!).

Aries and Taurus. Fire and Earth. Really difficult...

Have you fallen in love with a Taurus? Do you happen to like stability? Taurus is very different from you: (s)he keeps his/her feet on the ground, (s)he likes safety, risks scare him/her to death, change is an earthquake to him/her. Not to say that Taurus does not have your strong nerves and this could lead to many conflicts!

The main disadvantage for an Aries in getting involved with a Taurus lies in the fact that (s)he is really, really slow in everything (s)he does. Not in the bad meaning of the word, only Taurus is more prudent, more difficult to start, more sensual when making love, or slower in making decisions. I don't have to tell you how much this thing will annoy you, because Aries lives and moves at top speed. I think you are already guessing.

Both Taurus men and women think food is a kind of perfect prelude for the sexual union, so this is an idea if you want to go on. After you turn off the lights, you will discover such a sensual, loving and tender person that you might want to change yourself a little.

It wouldn't hurt if you switched to a lower speed to enjoy everything a Taurus can offer when (s)he makes love. You move at lightning speed but the zodiac's champion at caressing - Taurus is fond of shapes, touching is very important to him/her - might change your views on love.

Of course, the reverse is also possible, meaning that you could help your Taurus become more spontaneous, sometimes (s)he is so damn serious about daily problems!

Taurus is very productive and practical, and this is a good thing in a family where there is an Aries, because the latter is not too practical.

What's the difficult part then? Well, you will soon get tired of Taurus's style who likes staying at home, while you want to go out, to socialize. Taurus is very fond of his/her habits, and comfort is the basic concept in his/her life. Are you, Aries, capable of convincing your Taurus to leave his/her quiet life for one day and join you to a party? If not... you will get bored very soon. And Taurus, in his/her turn, will get tired of your absence all the time.

Aries-Taurus relationship is a soliciting one, indeed: each of you will have to give his/her best and give up many things to stay together.

Taurus and Gemini? Inflexible Earth and adolescent wind?... You'll both have to change very much in order to make this relationship work...

Each sign of the zodiac has the qualities that the preceding sign lacks... Gemini is right after Taurus so they aren't very careful when they throw themselves into a project, don't count ten times before cutting (in fact, they don't even count) and they know that dreams and occasions disappear when you take too much time to decide... The Gemini native takes risks, is sharp-minded, witty in conversations, very versatile and changing and has a unique gift for communication! Gemini is the best at it... You need roots though, considered risks, safe methods and caution in everything.

Gemini can live in a suitcase, that's how much (s)he feels the need to travel, to walk, to go to friends' houses, exhibitions, dinner-parties, anywhere, but not home. And this is exactly what you want most: to be able to stay at home, next to someone, in a comfortable home away from the crazy world.

Gemini is neither too attracted to material possessions, (s)he feels like (s)he's drawn backwards by these earthly things, but that's exactly what you want from life. Your goals are so different! And the fast amazing pace of a Gemini native almost scares the quiet Taurus that walks patiently and slowly and doesn't try new things just for the sake of adventure...

Gemini is like quick silver, and to an inflexible person like you, dear Taurus, this will be hard to take... You have much patience, we all know that, but when Gemini starts asking you why you find it difficult to decide when the solution is so clear (and taking decisions on the spot sounds like crazy to you), when (s)he starts reproaching that you spend too much time at home... it will get on your hooves! Gemini is not very patient by nature, and this will always be a sore point in your relationship.

Keep in mind that Gemini doesn't want to harm anyone: that's the way (s)he is. Different, very different from you, dear Taurus. I once heard someone say that a Taurus should learn how to think more when (s)he feels and how to feel more when (s)he thinks... Maybe you should think about it...

Why a Taurus-Gemini relationship can't work? Because Gemini doesn't understand why Taurus is so headstrong, because Taurus doesn't understand why life has to be lived in a rush and without considering anything (although, if you think a little about it, you can only die once, and adventure can be an occasion to learn so much about yourself and about the world).

Maybe you stand a chance if you make your Gemini partner understand that the way to your heart goes through your soul, not your mind. But Taurus-Gemini is a very difficult relationship. Although it would be a wonderful combination of affection and imagination if it worked.

Taurus and Libra. What happens when Air invades the Earth?... That's exactly what happens, an invasion...

If you have your eyes set on a Libra, I probably don't have to tell you how much (s)he likes talking, and talking, and talking... About anything: philosophy, psychology or the price of strawberries in comparison to the one of onions. You have a strong, rational mind, but at one point you'll start wondering if it's really necessary to talk about all this when you are tired from work and all you want is to sit down in your armchair and relax while reading the newspaper (Taurus is addicted to habits).

Libra is an Air sign, (s)he has to travel, at least in his/her mind; if (s)he can't wander, (s)he has to talk in compensation! Libra's avid mind needs new topics all the time, new "tests", intellectual nourishment.

Libra is very often undecided, but only because (s)he can see both sides of a problem so well. If your Libra asks for your opinion, (s)he wants to see if (s)he hasn't left something out, because (s)he feels an inner need to find "justice", "the right answer", "the truth" or, better, "the middle course": the equilibrium. This indecision of Libra will annoy you but it only means that Libra is trying to adjust his/her scales. Anyway, you won't get rid of Libra's conversations, so give him/her a chance...

At the beginning, you'll notice it's all right if you are a little overbold and more insistent with a Libra, because (s)he's so diplomat and charming. But you'll find an obstacle precisely when you are very confident about your chances: even if Libra exteriorizes the way we know (s)he does, deep in his/her heart (s)he is very determined, with very clear opinions about anything and anybody, and not at all passive.

Sexually, Libra is very active and poetic. While you deal with the physical part, the ethereal is Libra's specialty; maybe (s)he'll teach you more about subtlety. You are both governed by Venus (the planet of beauty, of love), so sex is expected to be a real astrological "match"...

You won't be troubled about unfaithfulness: Libra is the sign of the people who need to be in a long-term relationship (meaning "marriage"). (S)He doesn't like flirting and conquering all his/her life.

In conclusion, the Taurus-Libra relationship will encounter some obstacles, especially in the communication area, but that can also work if you want it badly enough and manage to change a little. I know how much you hate that word, dear Taurus, but next to a Libra, you'll have to be more FLEXIBLE.

Taurus and Sagittarius? Don't expect loveliness and fireworks! You have to work hard to stay by a Sagittarius' side, and especially to make such a Jupiter native stay by your side! Everything is so different with you two...

You'll find out that Sagittarius is full of energy and optimism. And (s)he will regard your caution as a sign of pessimism... Sagittarius likes living life to the full and especially traveling, while you, dear Taurus, like habits, arranged and well-planned things, and the idea of packing and wandering seven years in Tibet doesn't sound too good to you...

Sagittarius is a mutable sign, though, meaning flexible, adaptable. In conclusion, if you manage to win his/her love, (s)he'll make more compromises than you are willing to make and (s)he'll try to change (something that you strongly reject, even as an idea).

The only problem that requires attention is that of traveling, because your Sagittarius really loves it, (s)he likes going out, doing sport, while the immobile Taurus prefers a good meal and a movie on TV.

You, dear Taurus, are more interested in a long-term relationship, while Sagittarius is afraid of losing his/her dear freedom if (s)he gets married or has a steady relationship. Sagittarius is the sign of celibacy: individuality and freedom of movement are decisive for him/her. With your possessiveness, dear Taurus, there might be some sparks and even a fire on this issue! Don't try to confine your Sagittarius because that's what (s)he hates most and (s)he'll run so fast that you won't even see him/her!

Financially, Taurus and Sagittarius get along very well, you are on the same wavelength. As for working together, you are perfect partners, each of you completes the other.

Sexually, the inner Fire that burns within each Sagittarius will amaze you. But (s)he is not very sentimental, it's like (s)he does sport when (s)he's in bed, and to you, love is something spiritual and much more romantic than to a Sagittarius.

Sagittarius' apparent sentimental shallowness will make you sad and wonder whether a relationship can hold on without romanticism. Indeed, maybe other astrological aspects can make things better, but, all in all, there aren't many chances for a relationship between a Taurus and a Sagittarius to succeed.

So, can a Taurus-Sagittarius relationship work? If you are willing to adapt to new situations on a daily basis, to change and accept Sagittarius' lifestyle, if Sagittarius is overwhelmed by your sensuality and pragmatism - yes. But how much will each of you have to offer and what will you get in return? Think long and hard before starting a relationship with a Sagittarius.

Taurus and Leo, sensual Earth and theatrical Fire...

There are many qualities that bring you together... Both Taurus and Leo are possessive and faithful, interested in cultural activities and a neat home.

But there are so many things that keep you apart! You, dear Taurus, want security in life, a solid base, love proofs, while Leo needs to be in the centre of attention (that is outside home), to be applauded and first of all respected. Leo will fall in love with the compliments Taurus is a master of, and (s)he'll always ask for more... because Leo needs to know (s)he's at the top of the list, number one. And you won't realize that you have to tell him/her all over again how wonderful (s)he is, how beautiful and smart, how generous ((s)he really IS!)... At a certain point, the poor feline will wonder whether you have "unfallen" in love with him/her! So pay attention to this communication obstacle.

Due to the fact that Leo is good at initiating projects and you are good at putting them into practice, it'll be a perfect combination in this regard: when (s)he encounters a setback, Leo looks sideways with a "That shouldn't be here, it wasn't in the plan!" expression on his/her face, and you, patiently and tenaciously, will go beyond it or help your Leo understand why the world isn't perfect and why projects of any kind need a solid base too, made of perseverance and resistance.

Both Taurus and Leo are oriented towards the material world, although differently: for you, the material means a compensation for your need of shapes and concrete, and for Leo, it means fulfillment of his/her ambitions for success and represents a proof of accomplishment.

Don't forget that Leo is governed by the Sun, and Taurus by Venus, the planet of love and beauty. Even children know that the Sun is the centre of the solar system. Therefore, Leo has to be in the centre, too, his/her merits has to be recognized... To a big extent, the future of the relationship depends on how much you, dear Taurus, are willing to give in and how well you can handle and accept Leo's egotism (remember that his/her intentions are good).

But neither Leo nor Taurus are easy to tame. When you fight, there are no sparks, there is a whole fire...

If you can overwhelm your Leo with sincere admiration, equally sincere praise, with the love you know how to offer.... maybe you'll tame him/her. But if you put out the Fire, it isn't a Fire anymore, and Leo will want to head towards other places.

Sexually, there is a lot of passion. You both like making love slowly and artfully, and Leo's desire of being adored will find fulfillment in your loving skills. Leo is very generous and indeed (s)he has a kind heart, a detail that pleases you. Leo will love you dramatically, theatrically, ardently: that's how the Sun loves. Well, it's the perfect reason for you two to be together... Is it enough? You're the only one who knows!

Taurus and Aquarius. The attraction between Air and Earth... how long can it last? Not too long, if you ask the stars.

Your Aquarius has a special charm, mysterious and seductive. At the beginning (s)he is distant, even cold, analytical, intellectualist (the sign of inventors!), and his/her mind will fascinate you. Aquarius people are often geniuses in their professions, everything new attracts them, technical issues are not a problem to them and they seriously consider the next day.

They say Aquarius' role on Earth is to break the existing structures and replace them with better ones. And a Taurus is very terrified when (s)he hears these two words ("structure" and "break") in the same sentence. Taurus is into stability, fixed things, and (s)he can hardly decide to get rid of his/her old pair of shoes, let alone change the world! Why not keep what we have?, asks Taurus, and Aquarius starts telling him/her about the new technologies that will revolutionize the world!

Taurus lives in the present, Aquarius in the future... an important difference that will often stay in the way of communication. You like being highly thought of, you care about what people say, while Aquarius has no interest in such things.

You, dear Taurus, are romantic, warm and you have more to offer than anyone else. Aquarius is not very different, but (s)he expresses so differently! Aquarius is governed by Uranus, the planet of individualism, that makes him/her be distant sometimes: (s)he's afraid of getting too close not to lose his/her personality. And next to a possessive Taurus, Aquarius will get scared very soon.

Sexually? Aquarius is exciting, imaginative, a real wonder of the world! But if you don't try to be like that, too, (s)he'll think you're too conservative, too sentimental. To an Aquarius, making love is one of the interesting activities you do when you want to relax.

Of course Aquarius is capable of real love, but (s)he needs a relationship that doesn't make him/her feel confined. And this is too much, too radical for you, dear Taurus. Moreover, at the beginning of the relationship, it will be difficult to convince your Aquarius that the ultimate goal is marriage. The idea itself of belonging to someone scares him/her!

On the other hand, if there are some favorable astrological aspects between you and your Aquarius, everything can be different and many Taurus and Aquarius people can have a successful relationship. But, strictly from the point of view of the sun sign, the relationship is very difficult, not to say impossible.

Quotes from Famous Taurus:

“Carry the battle to them. Don’t let them bring it to you. Put them on the defensive. And don’t ever apologize for anything.”

-- Harry S. Truman (Sun in Taurus)

“A minute’s success pays the failure of years.”

-- Robert Browning (Sun and Mercury in Taurus)
