

PISCES

Mysterious and alluring individuals, most Pisces are extremely talented, but even though they are gifted in many ways, they still manage to spend most of their lives battling “confusing” conditions. Pisces is the sign symbolised by the image of two fish. Their symbol depicts one fish heading upward, the other pulling downward. This mirrors how Pisceans are frequently torn between two pathways in life, or actually do live two very different existences at the same time.

The number 2, is a very powerful number for them. This zodiac sign is acknowledged as being the Saint and the Sinner rolled into one; the trendsetter of fashion or art, the lost soul, the philosopher and the psychotic and the visionary. As a credit to them, considering their many vulnerable characteristics; Pisceans are incredibly adaptable and resilient. They are to be found leading the field in many diverse areas of life and many Pisces can be found represented amongst top business millionaires. On the other side of the coin, prisons, reform schools and all kinds of institutions statistically hold a high number of Pisceans too.

The Piscean’s inner quest to explore their “ivory tower” syndrome can lead them into some most unusual and unlikely living conditions. Of all the signs of the zodiac, Pisces are the ones who end up in the most muddles over the years of their lives. They fantasize about situations, people and particularly romance - and because they spend so much time in their own form of ‘fantasy land’ this can catch them short in other more worldly areas. Because of this inner world of fantasy, Pisces people seldom perceive whatever is going on around them in its true light. They see life instead as they want to see it, coloring their view of the world in hues and tones far removed from its true reflection. No wonder this is the sign of both miracles and disillusionment. If you are a Pisces, be warned your emotions are a weak spot.

PISCES AND TAURUS Water and Earth, but what a special Earth! Even the stars smile at this combination: it is worth trying!

Fortunately for you, Taurus is very sensual, reasonable, practical, and, in addition, sex is art to him/her. You'll fascinate Taurus rather than vice-versa. (S)He likes your visionary talent, your refined spirit and unselfishness.

One little problem, though: Taurus' materialism is considerable, so you'll have to get used to it. But it's worth it because you'll get much attention in return (a Taurus will always try to offer as much as (s)he receives).

Taurus really likes saving money, keeping objects and making a fortune. Pisces thinks these are earthly, superficial matters, and doesn't get it why (s)he is supposed to be so concerned over money! Taurus does it instinctively, but it's a good thing, because somebody has to bring money home after all.

To a Taurus, being in love means making love. A lot. Taurus doesn't have the same view on this matter as Pisces does. To a Taurus, caressing means very much. Once a Taurus is yours, (s)he'll be faithful, understanding and you'll always rely on his/her practical thinking.

An eternal romantic, Taurus meets some essential needs of Pisces' soul.

Taurus is capable of great sacrifice in order to reach a goal, so (s)he'll also try to make the relationship work, you won't be the only one trying.

Taurus lives at a material level very much, home is very important to him/her, as well as colors and shapes... Taurus is a sensible sign, but, due to the fact that (s)he is also a feminine sign ruled by Venus, (s)he'll understand you, even if (s)he doesn't agree with you every time.

As Taurus likes all water running to his/her mill, don't forget this detail: if you are able to build and maintain a harmonious home, your Taurus will never leave you.

In conclusion, is it possible? If Pisces comes down from the clouds just a little, (s)he'll find out that the Earth is the safest supporter: after all, you can't fall off it.

PISCES AND CANCER Water and Water, a mutable sign and a fixed sign... All stars smile when a Pisces meets a Cancer.

The most important need a Cancer has is having a home and a family: that's where (s)he finds his/her peace, that's where (s)he is happy and wants to be when the day ends. And these are precisely the things a Pisces can offer him/her - gracefully, delicately and reasonably.

As Pisces and Cancer are two Water signs, you both feel emotions in a certain way, more deeply, more intuitively and spiritually. Pisces' need to create and express will be fulfilled in a relationship with a sentimental, romantic and dreamy Crab.

Together, you can create a special paradise, far from the unbound world, because fast paces exhaust both of you very soon.

Cancer tends to put away and to invest, which would be excellent, because Pisces lacks such tendencies. Also, they say that, of all the signs, Cancer is the best at finding bargains. The material side of a long-term relationship is thus secured, all you have to do is enjoy and discover each other: just the thing you know best, like two real Water signs!

The Cancer native is famous for his/her moods, (s)he is extremely capricious, changing and often difficult, but a Pisces will almost always know how to fit into a Cancer's personality (that's what Water knows best) and understand him/her.

Don't say I didn't warn you: sometimes, your Crab will be so difficult and so moody, that you won't know what you did to upset him/her. (S)He doesn't get over it quickly so be careful! But (s)he likes talking about it, so, if you provoke him/her, (s)he'll open up and everything will come to normal.

Remove Crab's shell gently; it's not easy all the time, but once you've understood him/her, the sensitiveness you are able to offer will be a great support in tempering Cancer's moods. The ethereal and intuitive Pisces often feels the partner's grief, as intensely as his own, so rely on intuition: there are moments in which you should try to find out what's happening and moments in which you should let things settle down a little. But take into consideration that a Cancer never forgets and, if you don't ask him/her why (s)he is upset, (s)he'll get upset again! Because you didn't ask him/her!

Both Pisces and Cancer are excellent listeners, "a shoulder to cry on". And you both enjoy giving advice, therefore you should get along just fine from this point of view. When two waters meet, communication is not a problem: the union is fluid and simple, almost imperceptible.

PISCES AND SCORPIO. Have you found him/her? Perfect, don't ever let him/her go! If there are soul mates, then Scorpio is Pisces' pair!

Scorpio will understand all your feelings and emotions that nobody understood. Just like you, Scorpio truly wants to know our purpose on this Earth, whether DNA was created by God or by aliens, what the world is heading to. It's a sign of spirituality, and Pisces appreciates that very much. Scorpio is also faithful and discreet, and Pisces appreciates it even more. And Scorpio's love is very deep and his/her feelings very strong, just like Pisces'.

Sexually, it can be a fantastic connection: Scorpio loves making love and likes the way Pisces regards the sexual act, as an almost religious, sacred experience. Be aware, though, because Scorpio is also extremely jealous, so I'll give you a piece of advice: if you don't want to get very involved in a relationship with a Scorpio, avoid physical contact or delay it as long as possible. Why? Very simple: once (s)he made love to someone, Scorpio expects complete faithfulness and feels entitled to having his/her usual jealousy spasms. To a Scorpio, it's like a contract assigning him/her ownership over the person (s)he loves.

Scorpio lives very intensely and has a mysterious personality: (s)he sometimes needs to be alone - and who can understand this better than Pisces? And, since we're talking about living intensely, I have to warn you that Scorpio sometimes develops real obsessions (not to say paranoia...).

If your Scorpio seems lonely, try to make him/her talk. Sometimes (s)he him/herself doesn't know what's on his/her mind, but if (s)he shares his/her feelings, maybe his/her thoughts will clear up a little, too. But don't expect your Scorpio to open up to you that easily: you'll need all the persuasion and charm your intuition can supply. It's hard work - don't say nobody warned you! But I'm sure a Pisces' delicate sensitiveness will be able to reach a Scorpio's soul and open it to find the treasures it hides.

Scorpio will often urge you to make a stand, to be more active and assert yourself more - Scorpio people are very confident. If somebody tries to take advantage of you, the Scorpio by your side will be the first to have an access of anger and to defend you.

Scorpio knows how to make money, and this is good, because (s)he'll encourage and support Pisces from the financial point of view.

In conclusion, is it possible? Yes, it is, and I bet you'll both enjoy being with each other - if you can live as intensely as Scorpio does. (S)He'll show you a new world and deeper emotions and feelings than you have ever imagined.

PISCES AND CAPRICORN Water and Earth, ambition and vision... It could be a good union.

Capricorn is a feminine sign, which means (s)he has the capacity to understand Pisces' visions, emotions and intuitions, as well as his/her needs.

Practical and determined, an intellectual sign, Capricorn will be a good life partner for a Pisces. The Capricorn native has an excellent sense of humor, which makes him/her pretty sociable. However, (s)he is generally a little too cold and realist for a Pisces. Fortunately, you can easily convince a Capricorn to change so, if you try, you'll manage to get the best of him/her.

Capricorn is a very materialist native (and, considering the visionary nature of Pisces, there might be a small problem), but this is good, because money is of no interest to a Pisces. Pisces does not strive for money because (s)he knows that one way or another, it will come to him/her. If you ask him/her how it will happen, (s)he will just shrug his/her shoulders... (s)he knows, but (s)he can't explain the unique and complicated intuitive processes by means of which (s)he knows.

Capricorn likes having a well-equipped house: up-to-date washing machine, a car, things like these. His/Her materialism protects him/her from unexpected disasters and thus (s)he often has a rich life. Capricorn is very aware of his social status and (s)he often makes a big deal about it, and Pisces might not like it because (s)he lives in his/her own world most of the time and doesn't care about such practical, prosaic, superficial things. This is precisely the point that the relationship could stumble at, because while Pisces prefers buying a painting that inspires him/her, Capricorn will knit his/her brows at it and will take Pisces to the household section, thinking of buying a new refrigerator!

Sexually, Capricorn is an artist, so be prepared for a real show. (S)He makes love slowly, passionately and with commitment. (S)He will be delighted at Pisces' imaginative side and strong feelings. But, although Capricorn loves very deeply, (s)he doesn't show it as much as Pisces would like to. To a Capricorn's mind, the fact that (s)he loves you is proven enough by what (s)he does, so, little Fish, you will often long for the words you need so much.

Capricorn wants a peaceful life, so you'll get along perfectly from this point of view because this is exactly what Pisces wants, also. Capricorn is kind and diplomat and (s)he will know how to follow Pisces' path, but (s)he will never give up his/her own dreams: a Capricorn follows his/her goal with ardor. (S)He keeps a part of his/her soul just for him/herself, and if Pisces knows how to enter this forbidden room, everything will be perfect.

Capricorn is often a little arrogant and proud, (s)he knows who (s)he is very well and (s)he doesn't avoid saying it. Pisces will surely frown at him/herself, but most often (s)he will just ignore such tendencies that are superficial from his/her point of view.

PISCES AND VIRGO Water and Earth, but that's not all. Dear Pisces, pay attention to the charming Virgo: it's your opposite sign in the zodiac, six months away. Have you ever tried to get two magnets close to one another?

In my opinion, there are two possibilities regarding this combination: either Heaven or Hell on Earth. The initial attraction will be very strong. The practical and realistic Virgo will be amazed at this ethereal and imaginative creature, and Pisces, in his/her turn, will be fascinated by the accurate thinking of this methodic native.

Virgo is very good at things that require preciseness, critical talent ((s)he has it and uses it with no reserve) and verbal ability. Pisces... is good at everything that is NOT precise. As for Pisces' talent, it's so well hidden under his/her unselfishness that it almost doesn't exist.

There is nothing a Pisces cannot understand, and this will bother a skeptical and rigorous Virgo. Pisces has vision, intuition, emotions and an inclination towards symbols. Virgo is often very idealistic and way too perfectionist! (S)He sees the world so clearly and is so good at discovering flaws, criticizing when (s)he thinks necessary and noticing what the others can't notice!

Each of them has what the other lacks. Where Pisces sees the wonder of the world and contemplates it silently, without trying to spoil it by analyzing it, Virgo comes with appropriate tools to measure and divide, to find qualities and defects, to classify and ask questions.

A Virgo can become extremely tiresome to a Pisces that is able to discover beauty everywhere, is unselfish by nature and tolerates so much. Pisces can't understand why we have to ask so many questions and criticize so much, while Virgo can't understand how anyone can contemplate without exploring. Pisces' answer would often be just a shrug of shoulders, but Virgo doesn't give up so easily: the tendency to analyze things will make him/her try to understand everything about Pisces' way of thinking...

On the other hand, Pisces gets tired very quickly when being interrogated... And Virgo will soon become mad if (s)he doesn't succeed in getting the truth out of Pisces' soul.

You both have agile spirits, and Virgo's energy is often directed towards this world, so you will enjoy talking, but your views are so different that it looks as if you spoke two different languages.

TWO PISCES When Water meets Water... time and space disappear, everything takes place at an emotional level and the world falls somewhere behind.

You are both imaginative, creative, you live your life at an intuitive level and you can understand each other without words. You both know how to give, and thus your connection will be like a beautiful dream, far from the reality that hurts these sensitive Pisces so much.

The only problem would be a prosaic one: neither of you is preoccupied with money, savings and other things of this kind that are for ordinary people only. Neither of you likes being in charge or making important decisions... With two idealists in a home, you'll have to find a sponsor soon, or your coming back to Earth will be rather sudden.

Neither of you likes reality, and this will make you build a world of your own, difficult to grasp and even more difficult to penetrate. It would be good if at least one of you had an Earth influence somewhere in the natal chart, because at sea, without an anchor, you can't survive for long.

You both like the same things, so spending your free time together will probably be a mutual joy. Creative as you are, you don't like working by a schedule, and the rhythm in which the rest of the world lives exhausts you too quickly, so you'll probably stay in very much, where you can talk and dream in peace.

Each of you respects the other's need for tranquility and harmony, and the moments of solitude will be benefic and relaxing, neither of you will reproach the other one with dreaming too much (finally, someone who understands the dreaming thing, dear Pisces, a soul mate!).

A Pisces will intuitively know what another Pisces wants and, even sexually, it will be a spiritual intensity, a real soul union.

Nevertheless, remember that there is a condition on which a Pisces-Pisces relationship can last: a drop of realism and common sense. If you manage to come up with that much together, you'll be swimming for a long time on a magical trip.

So, can it be? It certainly can, but don't forget: every now and then, pay a visit to Earth.

PISCES AND ARIES Water and Fire, the last sun sign and the one beginning the cycle... It sounds nice. But not for long. Because Water and Fire steam.

The initial attraction between a Pisces and an Aries can be magnetic, but a long relationship will be exhausting for both of you, even if Pisces does his/her best to adapt. How much Water does such a great Fire need to be put out? And once it is put out... Fire leaves, to catch light somewhere else.

Aries likes taking over. No problem here, because Pisces likes being dominated (because (s)he no longer has to make decisions, such a tiresome thing to him/her). But Aries is an action man/woman, and Pisces often settles for watching only. This could lead to some problems...

Literally, Water puts out Fire, or at least that's the tendency. Aries is too impetuous for a Fish, too caught in his/her own ego, and not at all diplomat. An Aries will almost always tell the truth to anyone's face, while Pisces has a completely different attitude regarding this matter.

Aries does not take time to think about the meaning of the world and life: (s)he takes action. And this could be stressful to a sensitive Pisces, who needs emotions and appropriate environment for his/her intuition.

Pisces would like Aries to think nine more times before doing something. Aries would like Pisces to actually start DOING something, instead of thinking and making plans. Pisces will often be terrified at what (s)he considers to be Aries' lack of judgement and strong ego.

Moreover, Aries, the "child of the zodiac", is most often incapable of fitting him/herself into another personality. (S)He is guided by the instinct of "to do", (s)he lives in the present and is excited about it.

Sexually, Aries is imaginative and passionate. But (s)he doesn't really understand Pisces' deep and subtle emotions, because from Aries' point of view, sex is relaxation, not mystical, artistic experience, as it is for Pisces.

In conclusion, can it happen? If Aries tries to pay more attention to the others around him/her, and learns to be more altruistic and generous, if Pisces decides to become more active and holds back his/her vital need of being spoiled... But after a while, each of you will get tired. Much will is required to have a long relationship between Pisces and Aries.

PISCES AND LEO Water and Fire - dynamism, excitement, creativity... but Water will soon give up staying around such a blazing Fire.

Leo is a very creative sign, a man/woman of action. Pisces is creative, too, so the relationship could be very dynamic from this point of view. Leo's generosity (who is, indeed, good as a play) will attract you from the first moment, and (s)he, in his/her turn, will be fascinated by your sensitiveness and visionary spirit.

Don't forget that what Leo loves most is paying court (or flirting), maybe even more than the relationship itself. Leo is a born romantic and (s)he will be very courteous.

Leo is very strong, offering Pisces a support that (s)he needs so much, especially since (s)he doesn't like being in charge. And Leo will appreciate Pisces' "subordination" very much. If you can praise him/her honestly, permanently highlight his/her qualities, you'll achieve very much. Leo likes for his/her many qualities to be recognized, likes being in the centre of attention and enjoys the others' appreciation and approval. In return, your Lion will offer you the courage you need to put your ideas into practice, to take action and make a name for yourself.

You'll have to teach your Leo how to be more subtle, to distinguish between more emotional shades ((s)he is not very subtle, especially sentimentally). Remember that Leo needs attention, adoration - so much that (s)he could take advantage of your unselfish nature. You'll have to sacrifice yourself very much in a relationship with a Leo: if his/her content is enough reward for you, then your relationship has chances to last.

As a Pisces, you're a flexible nature, but Leo is a cardinal sign, and often very stubborn. In such a relationship, a Pisces will always offer more than (s)he will receive. However, as I have already mentioned, Leo is very generous and your efforts will be worthwhile: your Leo will give you lots of presents, will take you out to the most elegant restaurants, because everything has to be perfect for such a winner as the Lion king.

If you succeed in making your Leo be more thoughtful, regard sex more as an emotional fulfillment rather than as a conquest or sport, you'll manage to have a life together. But you will never be equal partners.

Therefore, can it be? If Pisces is capable of admiring and adoring 24 hours a day, praising sincerely and losing part of his/her personality, if Leo tries to listen to Pisces' opinion which is often very reasonable and manages to satisfy his/her often excessive need of love, at least partially, and if they manage not to exhaust one another...

PISCES AND LIBRA Water and Air? Mineral water! The rip of springs! A couple which stars could disagree with, but anything is possible with a little effort from Pisces.

Born under the sign of Venus, the Libra native is often refined, sophisticated and naturally absent-minded, but with his/her feet on the ground. That's because Libra is both a cardinal and a masculine sign. Just like Air that penetrates everything, the Libra native is very popular and you will often find him/her in elegant or public places, always surrounded by friends.

The sensitive, introvert Pisces might have a little problem with that, because (s)he gets tired very easily when socializing, since (s)he has that rare capacity of sensing and absorbing the energies around him/her. That's why Pisces needs periods of solitude more than any other sun sign, periods in which (s)he recovers his/her strength, meditates or day-dreams.

Libra thinks Pisces spends too much time by him/herself. So, in order to make the relationship work, Pisces has to give in sometimes and try to adjust to Libra's lifestyle.

Libra is keen on cultural activities, high-class restaurants and almost everything that is fashionable. Therefore, little Fish, get ready to go into society. Although you'd rather stay at home, in front of the TV (Neptune, the ruler of Pisces, governs the audio-video), and although your satisfactions are most often of a spiritual and emotional nature, dear Pisces, you'll have to prove your social qualities around a Libra. Whether you want to do it or not - it's up to you.

Another sore point of this relationship could be Libra's tendency to over analyze things, which (s)he is so famous for (and good at, because after all, all that a Libra is looking for is equilibrium, truth, balance of scales). Pisces trusts his/her intuition and emotions much more so, when Libra tries to find reason, explanations and logic, Pisces will often just shrug his/her shoulders: his/her truth comes on different ways... Don't forget that Libra is a very logic person - and I mean pure logic, not the logic of intuition!

Libra likes dominating, taking over, things like these that are completely meaningless to a Pisces, who prefers being "ruled" because this way, (s)he doesn't have to make decisions (something that this native hates). So, there is no problem in this regard - unless you are a Pisces with a strong ascendant in a zodiac sign with dominating tendencies (such as Fire zodiac signs).

Pisces AND Aquarius Water and Air. Stars don't really agree with it and they warn you: don't try it, you might be sorry.

Aquarius always seems absent-minded, mysterious and inapproachable. This is what will attract you at the beginning, but you will get tired of it.

Stubborn and capricious, Aquarius will most often be incapable of assuming the responsibilities you want him to assume. (S)He is a stubborn native and, being a fixed sign, (s)he can't change, so guess who will offer more in your relationship?

Aquarius' bright intellect and the way (s)he handles when (s)he talks about technical issues will fascinate you soon. Remember that this is a sign of progressionist people, with advanced ideas. But, in order to discover the world, to reinvent the wheel and to discover the intelligence of the person next to him/her, Aquarius needs much space to manifest, while Pisces tends to become too possessive, wishing to overwhelm his/her partner with affection. Aquarius can't stand it.

Aquarius is good at leading the others, his/her mind works fervently and (s)he is often very, very intelligent. But it won't last too long until you'll start wondering if all this shining is really the gold you were looking for... Aquarius will ask much sacrifice from you: do you think it's worth it?

Aquarius is an objective, rational and analytical person, so (s)he won't be able to understand a romantic soul and deep emotions like yours, dear Pisces.

Sexually, Aquarius is imaginative, resourceful and it's a pleasure making love to him/her, but even a Pisces will wonder at some point if sex is enough to support a relationship. While Aquarius leaves to conquer the world, to discover new territories or see his/her friends, you might start packing...

If you stay together, it will be because you, dear Pisces, worked hard to trust yourself more and because you are willing to accept Aquarius' incapacity to understand your emotions and deep feelings.

Therefore, is it possible? Aquarius will explain the mysteries of nature, science or technology to you, will satisfy you intellectually, but (s)he will never understand your soul. Are you willing to accept it, dear Pisces?

PISCES AND GEMINI Water and Air! The zodiac's philosopher and the adolescent. What could come out of it? ... In most cases, nothing resisting.

This is certainly not a classical astrological union. Gemini needs much conversation to stimulate him/her, social contacts, variety. Pisces needs spiritual peace, a refuge where (s)he can isolate and dream and, from time to time, loneliness. Gemini wanders a lot, (s)he is always at some friend's place or just out... And Pisces is rather possessive and (s)he will soon become jealous - or will get tired of trying to satisfy Gemini's taste for new and glamorous. The thought alone of such frantic activities (Gemini is an Air sign, they have to be on the move all the time) terrifies Pisces.

Everything will be all right if you, dear Pisces, manage to make your Gemini understand why you don't want to go out on Saturday evening or to the seaside on Sunday - by explaining to him/her that you want to see a movie, that you need some time by yourself, that the peace of your home is more relaxing to you.

Gemini takes his/her time analyzing and will try to make you justify yourself, and a Pisces makes so many decisions on the spur of the moment or based on the intuition and on his/her inner emotions, that sometimes (s)he will find it rather impossible to do that. Gemini will show you a world that you didn't know before and will stir up your life - maybe even too much? - with his/her ever adolescent spirit.

As both Pisces and Gemini are mutable signs, you tend to follow the course of the water or wind, so there might be problems in handling a single home: neither of you is too economical or preoccupied with the next day... However, at the same time, neither of you gets carried away and you get by pretty well playing it by ear.

Gemini loves it when you whisper him/her tender words while making love so you can let your imaginative talents flame up. Teach your Gemini how to feel the emotions more deeply, how to grasp the essence of things and go beyond the surface level.

On the other hand, Gemini responds well to changes - some good news, at last! In fact, (s)he is the essence of change, since (s)he is the adolescent of the zodiac. But, at the same time, emotional relationships based on enthusiasm and freedom are much more important to him/her than those based on sensitiveness and deep feelings.

Is it possible, then? You should both give up too much and, while you, dear Pisces, are willing to give up, sooner or later your Gemini will feel that (s)he needs more freedom and wants more action. But it is worth trying - who knows?

PISCES AND SAGITTARIUS. Water and Fire... Very, very difficult.

Sagittarius is very straightforward, and Pisces is very tactful. The first thing that doesn't work... at all. Sagittarius could often be so straightforward and exact that (s)he can even hurt you. And if you ask him/her what's the reason for which (s)he says such things, (s)he'll simply answer: "Because you asked me! Why did you ask me then?". Many arguments that can end the relationship.

What will attract you to a Sagittarius will probably be his/her passion for education, for learning, and his/her inclination towards philosophical discussions. But Sagittarius' lack of diplomacy will make you frown more often than you'd like to, and finally ask yourself if you belong next to him/her...

Sagittarius likes traveling, and you worry much, doubt very often and find it hard to make decisions. Sagittarius won't appreciate that, because (s)he is optimistic and confident, and (s)he always hits the road with no fear and no delay... Precisely these often departures will run your energy dry, because you'll be by yourself too much time - unless you decide to follow your Sagittarius, at all risks.

Sagittarius' criticism is another characteristic that can annoy, irritate and baffle you, dear Pisces.

Many Sagittarius natives are also sporting or at least like exercising - something that doesn't even cross a Pisces' mind, who prefers watching a movie, day-dreaming or simply relaxing, but not by doing sport. Maybe (s)he'll convince you to do a little more gymnastics or maybe you'll convince him/her to go swimming together. But it requires strong will from both of you. A Pisces' resources can run out because of too much agitation and too fast paces.

Sexually, Sagittarius is playful and funny, (s)he makes love as if (s)he did sport, but (s)he lacks any emotional intensity a Pisces longs for so much. If you determine your Sagittarius to refrain from jokes like "Is it my impression or have you been putting on some weight?" while you are making love, maybe you'll be able to continue your relationship with him/her. Anyway, in a relationship with a Sagittarius, be prepared for truths told bluntly, with no reserve.

Both Pisces and Sagittarius are mutable signs, therefore flexible, which might be an advantage if you really want to try your chances with a Sagittarius. Remember that Sagittarius accepts no constraints: (s)he runs like hell when (s)he hears of them.

Therefore, can it work? With hard, hard work, all the altruism and understanding a Pisces can show and with great efforts from both of you in order to get along.
