

LIBRA

Every adolescent Libran's fantasy is to find the Prince or Princess of their dreams. As their lives unfold, the experiences, false starts, dramas, broken hearts and disillusionment they encounter seeking this personal Holy Grail, often shapes their futures in the most extra-ordinary manner. Love and love-lost makes a big difference to the Libran although their often happy-go-lucky appearance against all kinds of odds may not reveal this as fact.

Librans can switch off from the world around them and during these periods much more occurs on the deep innermost levels of the Libran's psyche, than their closest companions imagine. Many Librans after establishing a lifestyle that somehow falls short of their childhood dreams, manage to conjure up a most independent life and keep up an image of being dedicated to a "close relationship". They can escape into obscure role playing - and often this makes them extremely successful business people. When it comes to romance and love, Librans can be difficult to fathom yet in business many Librans discover they can not only be creative, but it provides an opportunity to express the more diverse sides to their personalities. Their charm can win jobs and provides powerful friends. But in both work and play, looking for peace and harmony, Librans often say "yes" when they should be saying "no".

Libra and Gemini? This goes for an A.

But you two shouldn't forget to come down to Earth from time to time, the world needs you around. With two Air signs, of which one is a double-faced Twin (or a Twin with two personalities, as they like saying) and the other is a Libra with two scales looking for equilibrium, everything is perfect. Mind though that you find someone who spends some time at home, cleans the house and things like this. Oh, yes, and somebody to bring money.

An excellent relation: Gemini is so curious, so young in spirit and giddy that (s)he will fascinate you. Gemini will feel even more attracted to you because, in comparison to a Twin, even a Libra will seem realistic and clear-headed.

Gemini's communication skills, his/her vivacity, the way in which (s)he reaches to the "core of the action", all this will turn each day into a new adventure.

You will probably have a lot of friends because Gemini is as sociable as you are. Your Gemini will probably take you out quite often (for Gemini doesn't stay at home too much) and, at one point, you will probably have to think very seriously about who stays at home anymore.

Neither of you is good at making money or saving it. If you thought you seized the day, wait until you see a Gemini. Together, you will have fun most of the time and you'll forget the word "boredom".

The intellectual connection between Libra and Gemini is excellent, because you are both Air signs and you understand each other, you intuitively know each other's way of thinking.

As for the physical love, with a native with a plural name and who often has at least ten spare personalities (just to have them, it can't hurt; it's not like he tries, this is how he is), the sex will be great: almost nothing is too bold or too weird.

A Libra-Gemini relation is worth keeping, not only because you both conceptualize as much (and think that the main sexual organ is the brain), but because this is a chance to rediscover yourself permanently, to be yourself. You don't need to change anything in order to attract a Gemini. All you have to do is work harder so you can afford to pay his/her phone bill.

Libra and Leo? Air and Fire? If you caught a Lion in your trap, keep him/her close, it's an excellent relation.

A classic combination: Air and Fire, each of them adores the other. The Air knows how to feed the Fire so it plays as the Air dictates... In brief, there is a good chance for the relation to last and stay fresh and beautiful.

Libra - meaning you - is very good at manipulating, for Libra likes ruling, but not in an obvious way - (s)he is a "little general". The good thing is that Leo falls for it very well. Leo likes ruling in an obvious way, but (s)he also likes being appreciated, loved, being told how wonderful (s)he is. Most often Leo is wonderful, indeed; after all, it's a royal sign: no matter who (s)he is, next to him/her you feel like you are the king of something.

Leo likes saving people, situations that (s)he can be applauded for during the action. Moreover, Leo will replace your hesitation with an ardent spirit of action. So, any time you want him to do something for you or in your favour, all you have to know is how to begin the sentence: "Sweetheart, you are so... (three-five qualities), would you... (the thing you want him to do)?" It will definitely be a success with Leo, especially if you are careful not to flatter him, because (s)he will see right through you. Leo enjoys sincere admiration, because (s)he really thinks (s)he has all the qualities people say (s)he has.

In a long-term relation, you are the manager, Leo is the boss, the king, the president - anyway, the one who gets all the credit. It is important that you understand that from the beginning: although you are the real boss, you are the silent partner. Leo has to have the obvious domination, otherwise the feline gets angry and starts fights. And since Libra can handle anything except having fights, it is better to understand that Leo has to be in the spotlight in order to avoid these scenes (they are not rows, they are always scenes if a Leo is involved!).

The sexual relation is excellent, because you are both very imaginative. Leo is very passionate and generous, (s)he likes paying court and (s)he is refined and elegant as you like it. Leo's fervent and generous sensuality really manages to set Libra on fire.

No matter what problems you might have, I'm sure you can solve them, because it is always the same problem with Leo: his/her oversized ego. Your famous diplomacy will help you get over these problems and keep your Leo happy.

Leo, however, will behave according to his unique style: (s)he will be generous, open-hearted and refined when it comes to love and society. Honestly speaking, isn't that what you particularly liked about him/her from the beginning? The fact that Leo is so passionate and stylish? Well, tell that to him/her as often as you can and you will have a very mild cat in your lap!

Libra and Sagittarius, Air and Fire. An excellent combination: the Archer is hard to get but once you've made him/her stay, (s)he will become a dream partner for you.

Sagittarius' fantastic and exciting thirst for adventure will definitely make you fall in love with him/her at first sight. Libra's gentleness and refinement, on the other hand, will attract this traveler, maybe even make him/her stop for a while from his/her search for discoveries.

You both like parties and making new friends. You communicate very easily and you have much energy: this is a perfect match. Sagittarius is more enthusiastic and has greater ideas and plans, and you are the romantic and sentimental partner.

Sagittarius is afraid of being "put on chains" or getting too involved in a relationship. Sagittarius needs much freedom, much space, for (s)he has to be sure (s)he is not locked in the cage or forced to live side by side with a certain person. In return, Sagittarius is very faithful once (s)he has begun to trust someone and (s)he will prove to be a reliable friend, who will always be there for you. The first step is harder to take, that's all.

Sagittarius is a very sincere native, up to being "cruel" sometimes. You might encounter some difficulties here, because you are not the kind that tells it to somebody's face. You'd rather spare the interlocutor and soften the bad news. Sagittarius is very, very different from you with regard to this problem, maybe even the opposite. "You asked me to tell you the truth and I did, what's wrong now?" is the typical answer of a Sagittarius who has just given you a heart attack with some bluntly spoken truth.

As the one who's more willing to get married (or to have a more serious, lasting relationship), you will have to convince your Sagittarius to agree on the expression "we are a couple" instead of "well, we get together from time to time". Sagittarius is hard to convince, but it is worth it.

In fact, all Sagittarius is interested in is not to lose his independence, personality, freedom of action and especially freedom of opinion. If Sagittarius is certain (s)he will not lose them, (s)he can be yours for a life time and, as a Fire sign, (s)he has an extraordinary warmth of feelings. In addition to that, as an autumn sun sign, Sagittarius tends to be more stable, more profound than the other two Fire signs, for autumn is the season of harvest, of careful analysis, of depth on all levels.

So, keep going! If you are patient, a Libra-Sagittarius relationship will not disappoint you, dear Libra, under any circumstances.

Libra and Aquarius, Air again and again... A heavenly love, provided that you find someone to cook and clean for you.

It is not quite without problems; still, a Libra-Aquarius relation could last for a very long time. You are both good listeners and you communicate with the others very well. The only difference is that Libra thinks that anybody should give and receive, and Aquarius gets lost with crazy ideas, abstract concepts and discussions.

So listen to your Aquarius and don't forget you cannot change him; it's like trying to mould a bubble of air. Anyway, you both like talking so you will be excellent friends. Therefore, since you are both looking for a perfect friend first and a wedding ring afterwards, it can all start from here.

The only problem you will have with Aquarius is that (s)he loves freedom too much and you want to make him/her settle down too quickly. Allow him/her some time and space to be him/herself, don't take him/her too harshly and give him/her the freedom (s)he needs. Aquarius is a very rational sign, the rebel of the zodiac, always in search for a cause to commit him/herself to.

You, dear Libra, are not a person of details or of housework. Neither is your Aquarius. The word "domestic" makes both of you cock your nose. And you are neither very economical so money could become a problem. If you, as a Libra, stopped spending so much, maybe you would convince your Aquarius to do the same...

It is very important to you to have a reliable friend in the person you love and with Aquarius, you have found your match because not only does (s)he agree with you, but also (s)he is looking for the same thing.

Sexually, Aquarius shows his experimental nature, (s)he always comes with new ideas, (s)he is always at the border between love and play. You could be a little surprised at the beginning, but remember that Aquarius is the inventor of the zodiac: if there is nothing to discover, nothing new, (s)he gets bored quickly.

In conclusion, the Libra-Aquarius relation is a beautiful one, but it needs plenty of realism and pragmatism, especially financially, in order to survive.

Libra and Aries? Yes and no, maybe yes, maybe no... stars seem to be undecided, too.

It is sure that Libra and Aries are 180 degrees apart on the zodiac circle, which means you are opposite signs. The attraction between you two at first sight is ardent, remarkable, fatal. Generally, though, the relation encounters many difficulties later. There are more strong points than weak points, but the weak ones are essential.

You, dear Libra, are the sign of partnership (of any kind: marriage, family, friends, associations) while Aries is the sign of initiative. This should end with “until death parts us”. But this is where the problems start, too: Aries, headed towards action, has the impression that Libra avoids reality, and when the charm of the beginning is over, you will think Aries is a little too impertinent, rude and unkind.

Libra's desire is to find inner balance, harmony and peace. Aries needs to discover new worlds, Columbus (or Picard) is written on his forehead, (s)he is restless until (s)he finds something new to deal with. Moreover, although not very faithful himself/herself, Aries demands complete faithfulness from his/her partner. Aries cannot forgive too easily Libra's hesitation in getting more involved in their relation. The physical relation, as in most cases of “attraction of the opposites”, is fantastic, but what remains afterwards?

Most certainly, it was precisely this “I CAN” attitude that attracted you, Aries' availability to take great risks, the enthusiasm with which (s)he begins anything (Aries has problems with ending something, the beginning is his/her strong point), but very often Aries does not look before taking a step.

You, dear Libra, are a very analytical and intellectual sign, and if you use your tact, your presence can be very beneficial to a bold Aries who is willing to start at least five projects on the same day. You like moderation and equilibrium while Aries hasn't even heard of them. Your diplomacy will be challenged with an Aries because it is the only thing that could make this relation last for a long time.

Sexually speaking, the Libra-Aries relation is an excellent one, it can even be the best aspect of it. Aries is very passionate and considerate. Don't forget (s)he tends to look at other men/women, but only if (s)he gets bored.

Libra likes the idea of getting married, but Aries is too independent to take such an important step. Aries is also extremely stubborn so you'd better make him/her believe it was his/her idea, because an Aries doesn't like being told what to do.

In brief, a Libra-Aries relationship will always challenge you if you decide to stay.

Libra and Libra? How long did it take you to set the first date?

With a Libra, you will feel as if you constantly look in the mirror: you look at yourself but there is also someone weird that resembles you and is looking at you from the mirror. On the good side of things, you are both lively and in love with beauty. On the other side though, you are quite lazy when it comes to housework and way too undecided. That's why I asked how long it took you to set the first date: it's hard to make one Libra say "yes", let alone two of them!

The relations between two natives of the same sun sign can be very good, but they are often a little too much alike and they end up getting bored or not standing each other's flaws. In your case, the main problems will be who rules and where, who cleans the house and where you can learn to let your passion free. Your relationship can be successful if you clear some things from the beginning.

Since each Libra is a little general of the army (although Libra is a perfect diplomat, that rules tactfully), assigning clear responsibilities and duties, tasks and rights from the beginning is worth the effort, even if it takes you 100 hours of discussions. Your incapacity of making a decision comes from your seeing both sides, looking at them carefully and not wanting to make a mistake or to be unfair etc.

When somebody asks you a "yes" or "no" question, you could try to answer in fewer than ten words... However, this hesitation involves many other things: the truth is you can't handle rows, scandals, attacks and... reality. The exceptional adaptability you prove can hurt both of you, because at one point you will have to make personal decisions.

Considering that none of you is eager to show his/her feelings, your relation could be lame from time to time. Libras don't get involved too much so that they don't get hurt later; however, when there are two Libras in a relation, a double non-involvement can lead to a standstill, especially from the sexual point of view, where both of you should try to be more relaxed and less reserved.

Libra is the sign of partnership and, by extension, of marriage, so you are probably already thinking of getting married. You had better settle the day and the place of your next date, because this alone will take you some time.

All in all, a Libra-Libra relation could work if each of you realizes that (s)he lacks precisely what (s)he dislikes about the other.

Libra and Taurus? A clear-headed Libra should think ten times before going into something like this... It's a difficult relationship.

Of course, Taurus is a wonderful person, no doubt about it. The problem between you two is making decisions, even the most insignificant ones. Taurus' style in this regard? (S)He just waits for somebody to come and solve the problem. Libra's style? Much the same. And when we deal with two signs that don't like talking honestly about many things and prefer to let problems solve by themselves, we can say that conflicts are most likely to appear quite frequently.

At the beginning, the relation is very good. Taurus enjoys everything that is good in life, (s)he is sensual and (s)he knows how to have fun. On the other hand though, Libra, precisely because (s)he is a Libra, can't refrain from a little flirt every now and then, so that (s)he convinces him/herself that (s)he is still wanted. Taurus does not appreciate this, for Taurus is a sort of faithfulness fanatic.

To a great extent, this combination depends on the kind of Taurus you choose. If (s)he is a confident Taurus, (s)he shouldn't be bothered by irrelevant things like this one. But if (s)he isn't...

Don't forget that stability is very important to a Taurus. If (s)he feels safe and (s)he thinks you are faithful, everything could be perfect. Taurus is very possessive and you are a little too rational to understand these complicated things, so let him/her be possessive and after (s)he has convinced him/herself that this Libra belongs to him/her only, you can mind your own business and go out as much as you like. You will probably go without your Taurus because (s)he prefers staying at home, (s)he enjoys it much more than going out.

The sexual aspect is the best between you two. Taurus is a very sensual person, who enjoys every moment, in a very beautiful voice sometimes (Taurus governs the throat so the throat-related activities such as eating and talking are more special with him/her), with patience and almost magical touching.

Therefore, a Libra-Taurus relation can work if Libra is prepared to be completely faithful (and that means completely). Taurus can offer you the financial security you need and an equilibrium that you have always looked for. But it is difficult for an Air sign to cope with the immobility and the stubbornness of an Earth sign. This will give rise to most of the problems.

Libra and Virgo? Cheerful Air and Earth? You'd better stay at home, at least you won't get angry this way...

Your pleasant, attractive personality will immediately attract a Virgo. The problem is Virgo's perfectionism. Virgo criticizes anything that comes in the way and this is what you particularly dislike, being nagged and analyzed all the time and having your every step watched.

Besides that, Libra is too sentimental for a Virgo, who is often emotionally inhibited (or too reserved) and takes life TOO seriously. We are talking about a sunsign that is rather rigid for your taste and does not open up too easily. Love will have a short life for you two.

Certainly, Libra gets along with almost any zodiac sign due to his/her diplomacy and permanent charm. The only problem will arise when you are not happy with the situation anymore. Virgo is often too reticent, even sexually. Virgo is a faithful native, indeed, and this is a good thing.

You can always rely on a Virgo: for good, for worse, in the morning, in the evening, whenever you need him/her, Virgo is always there for you. However, you will have problems with the sexual aspect: too many things that Virgo finds perverse, too much reserve, too long until (s)he unwinds.

Virgo is a sunsign for whom "home" is almost everything. When Virgo is not at work, (s)he is at home, doing something useful, for Virgo feels the need to be useful. Everything is neat and clean around Virgo. In this case, with an untidy and rather lazy Libra, who always postpones housework or hires a maid (because Libra has too many errands to run), it will not take too long until rows appear.

As far as the intellect is concerned, you are and are not a match... Of course, it can be wonderful to listen to a Virgo talking, (s)he has a quick, sharp mind, (s)he analyses everything in cold blood and (s)he doesn't lack poetry. But Virgo seems to be a little reticent to new ideas, a little inflexible. And you seem to get bored sometimes.

And this is only the beginning because in the long run, not only will Virgo nag you to give a hand with the housework (and Virgo can become obsessed with housework), but your discussions will focus on practical, earthly issues too often. This is due to the fact that Virgo is an Earth sign and (s)he likes reality very much.

In conclusion, the Libra-Virgo relationship has little or no chance at all according to astrologers. But, who knows, maybe you have some well placed planets here and there and with a little effort, each of you could change a little.

Libra and Scorpio. Air and Water: you couldn't have found anything more difficult to mix!

Ok, Scorpio is mysterious, (s)he lives intensely, (s)he seems to know the secret of the universe and (s)he is a little obsessed every now and then. Now, what can a nice Libra like about a Scorpio? Scorpio is a native difficult to understand and (s)he often needs time and isolation to grasp his/her own feelings.

What Scorpio feels is very complex and (s)he may even love you in his/her way. But Scorpio's ways are hard to decipher, for Scorpio is a Water sign so (s)he can go without problems where the rational and balanced Libra, who looks for equilibrium and harmony, is lost or refuses to go. Scorpio handles an ocean of feelings perfectly, even during a storm.

Scorpio is possessive and jealous. Almost nothing that is said about Scorpions is true, but everything is worth listening to. Scorpio is possessive because beneath that tough shell of an "impetuous" native lies a personality that desperately needs understanding, love (lots of it) and acceptance. Your harmonious spirit will hardly cope with a Scorpio's outburst.

Use your famous diplomacy, dear Libra, and don't try to understand everything about a Scorpio: Air does not resist for too long deep into the Water, it needs to go up, among the clouds, from time to time. That is, to your friends or just out, wherever you feel good. Your Scorpio will probably stay at home, because (s)he prefers it, and (s)he is not the kind keen on visiting friends anyway.

You were probably fascinated by Scorpio's intense and dramatic spirit, although (s)he is the one who will make you lose your balance most of the times. Therefore, since Libra needs harmony, equilibrium and safety, it won't do you any good.

Besides that, next to a Scorpio in love, anybody - especially an Air sign - will look rather cold and insensitive. And you will probably be annoyed at all the changes your Scorpio undergoes from one day to another, at all his/her moods and secrets.

Sexually, Scorpio is made to be excellent, but then again, at one point (s)he will start thinking you don't live up to his/her intense feelings. Scorpio can often be quite exhausting from this point of view.

Therefore, a Libra-Scorpio relationship is a difficult one, in which Libra will always feel threatened, provoked and confused. You'd better walk away from it...

Libra and Pisces, Air and Water? Beautiful, fascinating, unexpected... and often highly improbable.

If you happened to fall in love with a Pisces, you were probably fascinated by some mysterious, charming thing that all Pisces natives seem to hide. But don't say I didn't warn you: down there, in the depth of the water where the Fish live, there is nothing really, except for confusion, contradictory feelings and uncertainty.

With some natives, it can work, but with others, it doesn't. It depends on the other planets in your birthchart, especially for Pisces. The angle between you two on the circle of the zodiac is 150 degrees. Even without an astrological name, it still looks like a strange angle.

And it is strange, indeed. Equilibrium is the most difficult to obtain in a Libra-Pisces relation, if it is a long-term one. In fact, it is better said that balancing a Pisces, making him/her reach that point of stability and harmony, is quite difficult. By the way, if you find a solution, it's even better: we license it, wrap it and get rich immediately, because it is often impossible.

But the worst of all is that (s)he is highly sensitive, you can say something that upsets him/her without realizing it. Moreover, Pisces doesn't even say when (s)he is hurt or when (s)he wants something, (s)he keeps it to him/herself because, although Pisces does not admit it, (s)he likes playing the victim. Therefore, you can't really know where you stand in a long-term relationship with a Pisces. Astrologers say you two should only have a short affair and nothing more.

Pisces often prefers staying at home to going out. Since going out is your pleasure, it leaves you with two options: either you stay at home and forget about having fun, or you let him/her take his/her long, much-needed moments of isolation to recharge his/her batteries, and go by yourself. Your choice is important but the result can't be good: either you will get really bored or you will hurt your partner.

This relation starts beautifully, even impetuously, but it ends before you know it, as fast as air bubbles come out of the water. If it lasts, one day you will discover that it became tasteless, just like a bottle of mineral water that has been left without a cap for three days.

One single warning for you, dear Libra: think long and hard before starting a long-term relation with a Pisces, because (s)he is good at lamenting and making scenes and you often humour him/her just to avoid them. That means you stay with him/her, although you are not a happy Libra.

Libra and Cancer? Cheerful Air and temperamental Water? You'd better give up... Seriously, you'd better stay away from it.

Why? Let's start with the fact that Cancer is very, very, very sentimental. You will say that is a good thing in a relation. It is, indeed, but if it is too much, it affects and spoils the taste of the other ingredients, just like salt does.

Governed by the Moon, the most wandering celestial body, Cancer is a capricious and self-restrain native. Well, we could call him/her "introspective", so that we don't upset him/her, but in reality Cancer changes from one moment to another.

You just don't know when and why Cancer got upset, it takes hours to make him/her get over it and, in addition, (s)he never forgets. Cancer forgives, but (s)he does not forget. And when (s)he gets the chance, (s)he explains to you how badly you hurt him/her five years ago. And if you can't remember, Cancer will get upset all over again. Diplomacy can be very helpful in this relation, but pay attention to Cancer's high sensitiveness.

Cancer is a very complex person and (s)he has a depth of feelings that you find a little exaggerated. It's difficult to get under that shell (s)he carefully shows, and a Libra will often get bored before reaching the bottom of the ocean.

In addition, Cancer is very attached to his/her family. This is good, only (s)he doesn't really like going out or having fun. Cancer prefers a quiet evening at home, in front of the TV. Therefore, you can go out or to your friends by yourself or you can just stay at home.

You, dear Libra, are much more analytical than Cancer, and Cancer is much more sentimental than you. And since we are talking about Libra's analytical nature, don't forget that a Crab never walks straight: no matter what (s)he wants or tries, (s)he does it in a round-about way.

Financially, Cancer is a blessing for anybody: (s)he is lucky at money and (s)he knows how to save it, invest it and increase it. But this implies some cheapness. Cancer will be terrified when (s)he sees how much you spend and what you spend on. This could be a sore point.

Since we're talking about practical issues, you should know that Cancer is very attached to his/her home, as in (s)he likes having a nice, neat house and (s)he likes good food (it's the sun sign that deals with food). So, if you are one of those Libras that don't like housework too much, you have a problem.

Cancer is very romantic so making love will probably be excellent at the beginning. But (s)he is also very possessive and jealous and this will get on your nerves, or, better, on your "scales".

In one word, a Libra-Cancer relation is to be avoided.

Libra and Capricorn? Don't think so. Unless you are willing to get bored for the rest of your life. Big time.

The Libra-Capricorn relation is a difficult one and only the diplomacy, patience and tact of Libra can make it last. The main problem is that you are both cardinal signs which means you have a lot of ideas but there is no one to put them into practice.

And there is also the fact that Capricorn, as an Earth sign, does not like changes: Capricorn usually travels by a tram called Reality. Moreover, Capricorn hardly ever has fun and you will always feel bored, for Libra is a sociable sign that likes being surrounded by people.

Of course, considering the situation coldly, a Capricorn could help organize your life a little bit. Capricorn is a native that is very careful with money and (s)he will probably handle it (you spend a little too much anyway).

The best point of a Libra-Capricorn relationship is the friendship department. The physical attraction can be strong enough at the beginning but it usually does not last for too long. Capricorn's ambition is admirable, even to a Libra, and the patience with which Capricorn builds his/her life is an unquestionable quality. But Capricorn is also too serious.

In a long relation with a Capricorn, you will often notice his/her reaction to changes. Unlike you, not only does Capricorn dislike them, but he also avoids them most of the time, for Capricorn is an Earth sign and the inherent resistance of the Earth element makes him/her go for the clear situations, with a precise flow and it also makes Capricorn feel scared when changes occur (or panic over trifle things).

In conclusion, the Libra-Capricorn relationship can work if Libra uses his/her enthusiasm, takes Capricorn out, to parties, and tries to avoid boredom. However, if we consider the elements, the Air (your element) kept in caves and caverns (Earth) gets a sour smell and when it finds a crack, it leaves and never comes back.
