

LEO

Love triumphs over all for this sign, which is ruled by the heart and operates from this dimension too. Leo's are born fortunate. Charismatic and positive-thinking they attract not only an abundance of friends and opportunities, but manage to survive life's stormy times with style and good humour.

Once a Lion is committed to a relationship, they are totally devoted and faithful. Should their heart or trust be broken they never forgive or forget. When a relationship breaks down (even a long standing one) they can disappear into the sunset without a backward look. Leos can cut ties, and leave others heartbroken, but usually there is a good reason why they have broken a tryst. For a Leo, when a relationship is over, really over, it is over for good.

There are three levels of soul-evolution of the Leos. The highest is represented by the Sphinx; wise beyond their years and great teachers to others. The second is the Lion, King of the Jungle, ruled by ego but always protective and sustaining of those they love. The last is the Lion Cub, immature and undeveloped, frightened by anything new. These Leos cling to others (in the mode of the child not wanting to leave its mother's side.) They can't bear to be alone.

Leo and Aries. I and I. Two egos in a relationship... Fire and passion only. Can two strong signs such as these ones get along? Of course they can.

You - one of the best specimens of humanity, made to shine and be the first. The Aries - a brain full of ideas and a heart full of passion. How could you NOT get along? The superstars of the zodiac (as I like to call Aries and Leo) can only have a great relationship, meaning always passionate, exciting, active and thrilling.

It is true that the sooner two fires catch light the more volatile future becomes. Aries has much the same flaws as you have, and when you argue, there is fire literally. Neither of you stops in the middle of things. This means enthusiasm when in action but stubbornness in discussions. As for the old problem of proofs and arguments, you are both good at finding them so it is possible (make that highly, highly probable!) that your fights last, be fierce and end up with karate lessons...

So you'd better not get into arguments with your Aries! If you are still at the beginning and feel tempted to ignore this paragraph, wondering how you could argue with your twin soul, I'll give you a clue: Aries sets his/her eyes on other women/men. Flirting is so fascinating to him/her, that (s)he sometimes does it just for the sake of it... (S)He doesn't take the next step, but (s)he certainly likes watching.

Aries is a very ambitious and very faithful native though. (S)He is willing to do anything in order to win, and this is a characteristic that you will like very much because you know how to rule, but Aries knows how to handle details, you know how to give orders, but Aries knows how to carry them through properly.

Aries doesn't hesitate to cheat in order to win and (s)he is very resourceful in business, love and courtship. When you are convinced that "this is the way it has to be, I deserve that", Aries' ego will give in sooner than yours. Indeed, fortunately for you, your partner is the milder fire of you two and (s)he is more willing to accept a position that "is not of a boss", because (s)he doesn't really know how to be a subordinate.

Sexually, each of you wants to be "the best" for the other. For some reasons, Aries has to win. You have to be the most important (and quite often, you really are, Leo always succeeds in that). So you will probably get to the physical level of the relationship very soon, and you will be amazed at the Aries' warmth and sense for details every time.

Therefore, the Leo-Aries relationship gets an A.

Leo and Gemini. Fire and Air. Have you put your royal claws on a Gemini? You'd better hold him/her tight then - or better, hold "them", because Gemini has so many personalities that (s)he will surprise you every day.

Leo and Gemini like the same things: socializing, spending, buying expensive things, having many friends. This lively Gemini will show you the joy of living and each day will be different, because Gemini likes variety and (s)he certainly knows how to have fun, after all Gemini is the adolescent of the zodiac.

The absent-minded Gemini doesn't take love or life as seriously as Leo does. This might bother you sometimes but there are so many things that fascinate you that Gemini deserves being forgiven for it. With Gemini, you will know both complete happiness and utter despair. If you succeed in making your Gemini be faithful, you'll have a relationship that will never bore you.

Don't forget that Gemini seems very detached and often shallow. Gemini is not like that at all, but his/her way of seeing things is so different from the other mortals' (and even from the king Lion's) that, instead of trying to understand Gemini, many people will prefer to say that (s)he doesn't mean what (s)he says.

Gemini's personality? Multiple. However, (s)he is not aware of it, (s)he just thinks (s)he has many interests and is a little different. To the others, Gemini is as hard to get as Air. But you have finally found the audience you have been dreaming of: not only will Gemini wonder at your ideas and style of doing things, but (s)he will also encourage you to accomplish these ideas.

Gemini will admire and love you with all his/her personalities if you are patient with him/her. Any Fire needs Air to burn, and this is more like a wind that stirs it up and maintains it. As a mutable sign, Gemini is more flexible (often too flexible - this is one of Gemini's greatest problems) than you are, Leo being a fixed sign i.e. determined and immutable.

Anytime you feel your Gemini is not sentimental enough and takes things too lightly, remember that this is only what people understand of Gemini's personality. Gemini's role is to be free and search for the truths of the world. Indeed, it doesn't match with a long-term relation and the possessiveness of a partner very well. Therefore, you will have to make your sense of possession be temperate at least this time.

It is essential not to try to close the cage of a Gemini because you will lose him/her this way. Most of us want the same things in life: love, the safety of a home, children... But not all of us want these things at the same age. Your charm, the passion of Leo's heart and his/her generosity will manage to keep this charming Gemini in one place.

Leo and Libra. Fire and Air. A good combination from many points of view.

Leo's creative nature goes with Libra's artistic inclination and Libra will always be delighted at your personality, dear Leo. Libra is not good at making decisions, so (s)he won't mind you making them, for (s)he has the tendency to dominate, but (s)he also has a subtle way of manifesting it.

Since Libra is a cardinal sign and you are a fixed one, you both are stabile, generous and balanced. Besides that, Libra is romantic, just like you, but not always as passionate as you are.

A Leo-Libra relationship will be an active one, full of bright conversation and going outs (Libra is a very sociable sign) in which both partners spend a lot.

Libra's Air will really make you "burn". Libra likes discussing and analyzing things, because (s)he is an analytical sign. So a Leo won't ever get bored with a Libra. Your Libra also likes anything that is elegant and refined, so you won't have arguments about your extravagant taste.

Communication is the strongest point in a Leo-Libra relationship: you can be best friends. And love is born out of friendship after all...

You have to be careful though, not to let much time pass before you pay attention to your Libra, for Libra is like a bottle of mineral water without a stopper: if you leave it that way for a long time, it loses all its acid and brightness. But Libra is willing to give you all the admiration you deserve and will be so delighted at your enthusiastic and ardent style of living your life, coming up with ideas and making plans, that (s)he won't be upset if (s)he is dominated.

A small problem could be the fact that Libra is very sincere, (s)he tells it like it is, and (s)he might not flatter you all the time. But, if you listen and try to understand, you'll see that your Libra sees truth and the middle course much better: from a Libra's point of view, there isn't just black and white, but many shades of grey (this is why (s)he finds it hard to decide).

Sexually, if (s)he is treated properly, Libra can become very passionate. Refined and elegant, your Libra will make you see a different side of love. (S)He does not like vulgarity or haste.

Therefore, in a Leo-Libra relationship you will be appreciated. Follow this road, you won't be sorry.

Leo and Sagittarius. Fire and Fire. Yes, this is a relationship in which you will feel fulfilled! Sagittarius can offer you very much.

You both have the tendency to take love as a great adventure, you are both passionate and neither of you doesn't control him/herself for long. Sagittarius will stimulate you intellectually and emotionally. This is what a Leo needs to become faithful. Your open-mindedness regarding everything that means life and adventure goes with Sagittarius' extrovert personality very well, and (s)he will truly appreciate your qualities.

You both love freedom and like socializing, meeting new people, going out. This Air will set you on Fire and satisfy you from all points of view. On the other side, it is hard to make a Sagittarius be committed, but if there is someone in the zodiac who can and has all the chances to do that, it is Leo. Your leading abilities bring out the best of a Sagittarius.

Your self-confidence, the pride with which you live your life will impress Sagittarius, who doesn't have any ambition to be the boss, so (s)he will allow you to be in charge. You will sometimes feel that Sagittarius was born to be yours.

Problems? As Sagittarius is the same element as you are (i.e. Fire), (s)he has almost the same flaws, meaning that it is possible for you to have problems if you do not agree: strong arguments, harsh words and other such things could come out.

Sagittarius is a very straightforward native and sometimes (s)he will hurt you by telling you the truth to your face, which makes you feel insecure. Besides that, neither of you is very domestic or practical, so you might want to hire someone to sweep the floor... And, somehow, you have to figure out a way to MAKE the money you are dreaming of.

Sagittarius is a very flexible sign, maybe too flexible. (S)He hardly ever stays with someone for a long time. But when Sagittarius meets the proud Leo, the fascination will be too big. By the way, Sagittarius is neither as proud as you are, so (s)he won't be upset if you get all the praise, (s)he will give you some more of it.

Being the sign of the philosophers, a conversation with a Sagittarius can only be bright. You will often end up analyzing philosophical problems, and the communication between you two is excellent, because you stimulate each other intellectually. Sagittarius doesn't like staying at home too much, so you will probably go out very often, travel a lot, because Sagittarius is a native permanently in search of new places and experiences.

Sexually, you both shine like two stars. Love will be creative, even playful in the beginning, and always passionate. Sagittarius goes all the way in this respect too. Don't rush though and don't be careless. Sagittarius doesn't want to live in a cage, even if it is a golden one. Give your Sagittarius a little freedom to move and (s)he will always come back to you.

Therefore, in a Leo-Sagittarius relationship you will always feel fulfilled and stimulated. Everything you have best will come out with a Sagittarius and all royal wishes will come true.

Leo and Leo? Definitely yes.

The relations between natives of the same sun sign often have more good parts than bad parts, but the bad ones are almost impossible to get over, because both have the same flaws!

A Leo-Leo relationship can be excellent provided that you don't forget the Leo next to you feels the same need for compliments, admiration and adoration as you do. Therefore, you have to give as much as you expect. It shouldn't be too difficult because just like you, (s)he is passionate and ardent, full of ideas and desirous of living life to the full.

Of all the sun signs of the zodiac, Leo is the most shining. Leo is governed by the Sun, which is in the centre of the system and, most often, deserves his/her name of "king". Everything Leo does is refined, everything Leo buys is stylish, everything Leo thinks is bright. So are you, so is the Leo next to you.

Don't forget that Leo can discern flattery in the others' compliments as well you can: Leo has a sixth sense with which (s)he detects falsity. So, no matter how tempted you are to flatter, be yourself, otherwise you'll walk into your own trap. When you tell him/her (s)he is special, you have to believe it, because, just like you, your Leo doesn't just want to have the throne, but to feel the royal power.

In fact, two Lions can only live the love story of a king and a queen. A great love, but sometimes, a great rivalry, too. Any time you have an argument, neither of you is willing to give in for the other one's sake. Although you both are very romantic, lively and sexually prolific, the basic problem will be: who's the boss? It is quite difficult to a Leo to accept an ego as strong as his/her own by his/her side, but that's exactly what you have to do.

If you know how to offer each other enough power of decision and respect, how to schedule the days when you give in, in turns, it can only be a royal relationship. The same elegant taste, refinement and tendency towards parties and going out bring you together. Neither of you can administer money very well but it's a good thing you both know how to make it.

A Leo-Leo relation will not lack optimism, but don't forget to think about the future, too, about savings and long-term planning. Otherwise, you will not end up well, because you are both extravagant and you like spending.

From the sexual point of view, each of you has to allow the other one to shine, too, and maybe share the spotlight. This is not always possible so, once again, don't forget: be more tolerant!

It is rather difficult to get over the arguments, but when you do get over... Long live the Queen! Long live the King!

Leo and Aquarius. It is either too good, or too bad...

The physical attraction between you two is fantastic. It was probably love at first sight... But Aquarius' tendency towards analysis and criticism will hurt your ego. Aquarius is often distant and seems not to have feelings, because (s)he lives in the Air, and to a decent Leo this resembles rejection!

Aquarius is unconventional, understands love and relationships in a different way than you do, and doesn't seem to get so involved. Aquarius is too often away from the throne Leo is sitting on! Aquarius gets anxious and irritated when Leo becomes dramatic and (s)he doesn't accept you to become the centre of his/her universe.

Moreover, Aquarius is too independent to be an obedient servant and often everything ends here. Because Leo needs to dominate (Leo is entitled to, for (s)he is the king!) and although Aquarius guesses this is the way it has to be, (s)he doesn't like admitting it.

There is a good side, though, and if you want to make it work, focus on it: Aquarius will be exactly the audience you needed, the eager listener and admirer of your ideas. But Aquarius will also come up with ideas of his/her own, (s)he can't help it, or (s)he will interrupt you more often than the royal court allows...

Don't forget that, although Aquarius seems detached and distant, (s)he isn't: (s)he simply lives passion differently. Aquarius is not as ostentatious in love as you are, but that doesn't mean (s)he doesn't love. But Leo likes being shown (s)he is loved, being told (s)he is the best, the brightest and the most beautiful (which most often Leo really is).

Aquarius is very individualist and too independent for you, dear Leo. Aquarius is meant to change the world, and these people are not to be kept at home. Aquarius will often say you are too conservative and you don't do enough. Maybe your Aquarius will respect you, but not as much as you need...

You will be crazy about Aquarius' style because (s)he arouses your sexuality: when you get together, it is stirring. However, after a while, you will think your Aquarius is too unorthodox, even in bed.

The conclusion is that you'd better think a dozen times before getting involved in this relationship.

Leo and Cancer. Fire and Water? You'd better not... but you'll see for yourself.

It's true you are both romantic. But in so different ways! Cancer is often a very sensitive and sometimes even fragile person, that handles an ocean of contradictory feelings perfectly. To Leo, the sunlight and the accuracy of expressing yourself are equally vital.

Every time you try to have a conversation with a Crab or make him/her express and explain his/her feelings, you'll get the impression that Cancer doesn't know what (s)he wants. Cancer is very vague in anything (s)he does, but especially in expressing him/herself.

Of course, Cancer will fall in love with you, because the attraction of the opposites works very well astrologically. Cancer will know how to take care of you, because this is the role of this sun sign, to protect. But YOU will be the one deciding whether the relationship has to go on or not, because Cancer's high sensitiveness and the moods (s)he is famous for will soon exhaust you. In a word, there is love between you two, but the communication will be difficult, to say the least. In the worst case, there won't be any.

Cancer is also rather economical (if not cheap!) and your expenses will knock him/her down. Cancer needs stability, peace and a large amount of love per day. And although you are the most passionate of the natives, you'll get bored with his/her demands very quickly because, let's be serious, who can offer so much love every day, for years?

Love is fervent to any Leo, but responsible and tranquil to any Cancer. You will certainly be fascinated with the love a Cancer can offer you, but only for a while. At some point, your Cancer's possessiveness and jealousy, the tendency to spend more time in than out will exasperate or bore you. Or both.

Often, when two sun signs follow one another in the zodiac, each of them has what the other lacks. Instinctively, you might realize that Cancer has some qualities that you would like to have yourself.

Precisely because your Cancer has offered you so much, (s)he is expecting the same thing from you. But (s)he doesn't say it. You have to realize it. At some point, this will become very annoying to you. The adoration Cancer is willing to offer you doesn't completely justify what you have to give in return. And, as a native with a great need of "depending on someone", of relying on somebody else, Cancer is always asking for a lot from you.

In a Leo-Cancer relation, guess who will be the first to get bored?

Leo and Virgo. Fire and Earth? Maybe for a short while...

Leo is a strong creature, while Virgo is a perfectionist and a master of criticism (this will lead to most of the problems!). Of course, we could look at it in a different way: Virgo, being such a perfectionist, could think (s)he found perfection itself (that any Leo represents exceptionally). But Virgo has an often exasperating sense of detail and (s)he criticizes even when there is nothing to criticize.

Virgo needs to be protected and asks for much from his/her partner. You demand the same amount of attention so a conflict of interest will appear very soon. Who will give in? As an Earth sign, Virgo gives in very hard. Not as hard as Leo, but you will need time to mould this clay.

You will probably be very attracted to the Virgo's intellectualism, the way his/her mind filters everything as for others the heart or the stomach does it. But Virgo doesn't really understand Leo's dramatic nature and doesn't appreciate it properly either. And to any Leo, not being appreciated as (s)he should be is hell.

Virgo is practical, prudent and conservative. You, dear Leo, are extravagant, sophisticated and spendthrift. You enjoy the highlife and Virgo doesn't like that very much so (s)he will cool down your enthusiasm immediately. Moreover, (s)he won't allow being dominated or (s)he will be inflexible, and your need of authority will remain a beautiful dream in the best scenario.

Virgo doesn't allow Leo's pride and authority manifest, because Virgo does not take orders. You'd better try spoiling, comforting him/her and showing some flexibility. But only if you think it's worth it. Otherwise, your Virgo will leave faster than you think! Virgo doesn't need much to part with someone: (s)he simply imagines that the person does not exist anymore or (s)he convinces him/herself that that person doesn't deserve the effort. As I said, the power of his/her mind is amazing.

The good thing is that Virgo will never want to be the real master - so that you don't think everything is black. Virgo just doesn't want to be the subordinate, not obviously, anyway. In fact, it is a very good combination to a Leo because Virgo will show you where you are wrong (you know, Leos are humans too, although their name suggests royalty...) and will offer you a safe home, a solid base and stability. Unfortunately, few Leos are willing to give in, to hold their ego and compromise.

If you had patience, were a little more flexible, spent less... if you weren't such a Leo, I mean, Virgo could be an excellent partner for life. But I doubt you can live without constant admiration.

Leo and Capricorn? Fire and Earth... Hardly had it begun, when it ended. However, there are some chances... if you manage to convince this Capricorn of some significant details, such as constantly acknowledging your merits.

The prudent and practical Capricorn, who is often a little snob and always a little conservative, will burden Leo's romantic and enthusiastic personality. Capricorn is a reserved native so (s)he won't tell you how much (s)he appreciates you (even if (s)he does). Neither is Capricorn very theatrical so (s)he won't enjoy Leo's sometimes dramatic style, and maybe (s)he doesn't even understand you very well. Moreover, Capricorn likes dominating, or at least (s)he doesn't allow being dominated. And that makes any sensible Leo go crazy, because Leo wants to be in charge!

Capricorn is a very stubborn Earth sign and it is very hard to convince him/her to open his/her heart. You will need much patience especially since Capricorn is also devious... You will always move in a roundabout way with a Capricorn. (S)He finally gets where (s)he has to, but not very quickly.

Capricorn is very analytical and sensible, which will inhibit your exuberance, and Leo does not accept this. Next to a Capricorn, your brightness will fade away soon... Nor is your Capricorn as romantic and courteous as you are, but much more practical... so your trying to flirt or to pay court to him/her will be useless. The only chance is to find a Capricorn that has a lot of Water in his/her sun sign, with a more flexible ascendant, who is more willing to give in and see (and even wonder at) what is special about you. And say it, too! But most of the typical Capricorns will get angry in front of an extravagant, too refined Leo, or in front of his/her expenses (a little exaggerated, admit it!).

Sexually? You will have to seduce your Capricorn for a long time, to make him/her detach from the daily problems. Capricorn is very reserved, but if you succeed in passing this barrier, (s)he will become him/herself: very passionate and sensual. But your patience will be challenged once again!

If you are ready to put aside your pride, to accept Capricorn's rather frequent and precise criticism and make him/her open up to you, then this Leo-Capricorn relation stands a chance. But I'm afraid the King will get bored pretty soon next to a Goat...

Leo and Pisces. Fire and Water. Don't even think about it!

Leo is shining, ardent and dominating. Pisces is mystical and a little too dreamy. The differences between you two are too big. Leo is a Fire sign, Pisces is a Water sign, two elements that cancel each other. Pisces is sentimental (even sugary!), emotional and very romantic. Pisces doesn't show his/her feelings, and from his/her point of view, communication can be done in many ways, but not through words.

Pisces is very dependent and (s)he needs daily care, attention and love and (s)he is often very sensitive: you can hardly say anything because Pisces believes you referred to him/her and gets upset! Considering Leo's straightforward style, it might lead to problems.

Your active character, the way you understand having fun don't match Pisces' personality at all. Pisces prefers life in closed spaces, in the house, while Leo likes walking and going out. Besides that, speaking of going out, not only is Pisces wasteful, but (s)he doesn't even care about money. So you might get many unpleasant surprises from him/her.

Pisces' high sensitiveness is too much to any Leo, and Pisces' extravagancy is at least weird to a conservative thinker such as the King. Very soon, Leo will get sick and tired of Pisces' lamentation, frivolousness and insecurity.

Pisces lives in a different kind of world and Leo doesn't have the necessary patience or motivation to try to discover the world that lies in the depths of mystic waters: what would the Sun look like in a cloud of gas, like Neptune? Or in a deep water?

Pisces desperately needs the admiration and appreciation of the others, although (s)he never says it or asks for it directly: you have to figure it out! And since you feel the same thing, Pisces will often get upset and isolate him/herself and you won't even know why!

Pisces is often shy and introverted, while Leo is rather arrogant, proud and extrovert. Besides that, Pisces' total lack of pride will exasperate you: it's as if you didn't live in the same world!

Pisces doesn't want any money or social position. "What in the world does (s)he want then?", you'll start wonder. Generally, this is the point when the Leo stops because in his/her opinion, it is not worth trying to understand the Pisces mysteries. And maybe it isn't, because no matter how much Pisces tries to understand you, (s)he won't succeed in becoming aware of the greatness of your sign. Or in telling you often enough that you are as you are: the most important, the best, the brightest and the worthiest.

Therefore, a Leo-Pisces relation is a short-term one and often with many disappointments to both of you. You'd better give up.

Leo and Taurus. In a few words? Conflicts and conflicts again. That means too many personality conflicts.

Taurus has to have it his/her way all the time. Taurus is as stubborn as a bull and moreover, Taurus is a fixed sign, just like you, isn't (s)he? Oh, yes, (s)he can also resist stubbornly, what did you think?

Do you spend too much on luxurious things? Taurus is not the kind that accepts without saying anything. On the other hand, you dislike criticism more than anything. Do you have a great idea and you want to boldly try something? Leave it to Taurus, because (s)he will quench your enthusiasm in a minute with his/her caution.

Not to say that Taurus constantly refuses to acknowledge your true value, to admire you as any mortal should do. (We're talking about the king Leo, aren't we? It's common for you to shine wherever you go!) Taurus also needs too much commitment that you cannot give to such an ungrateful person. Is it enough for you to understand why it isn't working?

But let's put it differently... We take a cast-iron kettle, set a big Fire (Leo) and put some Earth in the kettle (Taurus). What does it result? An even harder piece of Earth than before: you can break stones with it! Taurus cannot be softened by your Fire. But if you know how to adjust the intensity of the Fire and if the Earth is not very hard and has some Water in it (or maybe even Air), it is possible, of course. However, it will take a very long time, because Taurus is very slow and hard to get started. Do you have the patience? Is it worth it? This is the question you have to ask yourself.

Nothing in this world irritates a Leo more than being ignored or not being paid attention to! It will take some well-placed planets in Water signs to make this relationship work. Of course you can do it with a little effort. You just have to want to make it work! But you need much effort for this one.

Taurus won't pay attention to everything you tell him/her: (s)he is very sensible and (s)he doesn't trust what people say too much. But if you take him/her slowly, you'll see everything seems to get better. In fact, this is the secret about Taurus: take him/her slowly.

The Leo-Taurus relationship will either fail or make you think really hard. In both cases, you should be more realistic: not all people kneel before you. Maybe you should try an Air sign.

Leo and Scorpio? Fire and Water. Beautiful, fascinating, but... short.

I shouldn't begin with it, but this is what everything starts with between a Leo and a Scorpio: sex. Fantastic sexual attraction, because their potential is enormous. Scorpio is as extravagant, as ardent and sensual as you are. If all problems could be solved in bed, you would be the most harmonious couple. Moreover, because Scorpio is 90° away from Leo in the zodiac, the chances of an attraction at first sight are even bigger. But the chances of a long-term relation decrease.

Scorpio, even if (s)he sets you upon a lofty pedestal, will never tell you that. Not only because (s)he is mysterious, but because Scorpio thinks this is the right thing to do. Leo is most often the easiest sign to manipulate, precisely because (s)he is so sensitive when it comes to praise. And, as a Water sign that has a good intuition, Scorpio knows that and (s)he will take advantage of it.

On the other hand, Scorpio is possessive and jealous and you won't like that very much. From your point of view, Scorpio is simply a difficult and temperamental native.

Scorpio is difficult because (s)he opens up very hard: although (s)he may talk much, it will take you much patience and tact to get to Scorpio's soul. And it is very possible that you get bored on the way.

As if it wasn't enough, Scorpio loves being in charge and (s)he doesn't understand your need for constant admiration: to him/her, you are too particular and ostentatious. When it comes to a long-term relation, you won't have the chance to dominate and that can make any decent Leo go crazy. This also happens because you are both fixed signs, meaning stubborn and inflexible.

Scorpio perceives love in a more mysterious, more sentimental way than you do. Under all that passion, there are torrents of deep love that you don't really understand. Scorpio doesn't talk too much and this makes it even harder to get to his/her heart.

If you, dear Leo, could overcome the tendency of fighting for being the boss and if you both knew how to listen to what the other is saying or wants more carefully, the Leo-Scorpio relationship could become a fervent one. If only!
